

LEWI hosted a seminar on Ghana's Natural Resources and Environmental Conservation from Mercia Aidoo

The David C. Lam Institute for East-West Studies (LEWI) hosted, with the help of the Department of Geography of HKBU, a seminar by an experienced economic policy analyst. The seminar “Ghana’s Natural Resources and Environmental Conservation: Policy Management, Challenges and Way Forward” was attended by around 30 participants on 14 November 2023 (Thu) at 14:30 – 16:00, on the HKBU campus.

The seminar was based on the speaker's long-lasting experience in Ghana. Ghana has recognized the importance of sustainable management of its natural resources and has implemented various policies, laws, and initiatives to ensure their protection. While Ghana has made progress in natural resource management and environmental conservation, challenges persist. At the end of the seminar, Mrs. Aidoo answered many attendees' questions and helped stimulate a fruitful dialogue.
